

The Glasgow Board of Education went into closed session Monday night to discuss the sale of real property. Board member Leigh Lessenberry emerged from the meeting making the announcement that the real estate located at 1108 Cleveland Avenue, which is the Central Office location has been declared surplus to the educational needs of the district.

Even though the building and property has been appraised, there is no mention of any plans to sell the building at this time.

The board got an update of the construction project that is Glasgow High School. Alliance Corporation Project Manager Mr. Jeff Wells gave the committee the positive update:

South Green Elementary and Highland Elementary Site-Based Decision Making Councils attended the meeting last night and both discussed the visions, ideas, needs, and actions to address progress being made towards district and state-mandated educational goals and for improving student achievement in their respective schools.

The board heard first reading of a proposed policy to allow early graduation from Glasgow High School to students with unique personal or educational paths.

And the board approved the installation of cameras in the new Glasgow High School cafeteria, and the installation of a concession stand in the building which would be operational by basketball season.
