

WKU-Glasgow will hold an information session tomorrow to help high school students get ahead on their college credits. The session will be on WKU's dual credit program which allows high school students to take WKU classes that count towards both their high school and their college graduation credit.

The program targets high school Juniors and Seniors but is open to underclassmen as well. The courses are offered at a reduced rate.

The session tomorrow is for home-school and private school students. The session will go from 2 to 3:30 pm and will take place in room 131 on the WKU-Glasgow campus. For more information, contact John Roberts at 659-6984.
