

The Horse Cave Police Department may be a small department, but they are having a big impact in the city of Horse Cave. They look at their work from a standpoint of 'Community Oriented Policing'. Officers become part of the community, not an outside agency.

Officer Bruce Neville says their dedication is to the people of the city;

{audio}http://wcluradio.com/newscuts/040714neville.mp3{/audio}

Officers are involved in not only fighting crime, but actually working with residents to make the community a better place.

Officers take the time to visit schools and talk with students to change the stigma sometimes associated with law enforcement and let the children know they are there to help as Officer James Roberts explains:

{audio}http://wcluradio.com/newscuts/040714roberts.mp3{/audio}

Officers play a huge role in the backpack program at Caverna Schools, which sends food home with students who may otherwise go hungry during the weekends. Chief Sean Henry said Officers became involved when they saw the need:

{audio}http://wcluradio.com/newscuts/040714henry.mp3{/audio}

Officer Derrick Murphy says helping these children, also helps their families:

{audio}http://wcluradio.com/newscuts/040714murphy.mp3{/audio}

The newest addition to the Department is Officer Larry Dale Martin, who says what he sees as the key to the Department's success is they all give 100%.

{audio}<http://wcluradio.com/newscuts/040714martin.mp3>{/audio}

Horse Cave Officers are not only combating criminal activity, but are well on their way to making Horse Cave a safer and better place to live for all residents. The Department has an open door policy as Officer Bruce Neville explains:

{audio}<http://wcluradio.com/newscuts/040714neville2.mp3>{/audio}

You can also find out more about the Horse Cave Police Department by following them on facebook, or again by stopping in their office.

pictured left to right: Officer Bruce Neville, Officer Larry Dale Martin, Horse Cave Mayor Randall Curry, Officer Derrick Murphy, Officer James Roberts and Chief Sean Henry.

