"Miss Chevrolet," the Mystery Girl whose identity is concealed, will arrive here tomorrow. She will arrive at the Chevrolet garage to change a tire during her 124-hour non-stop drive with which she hopes to shatter the world's record for woman's endurance driving. She left Louisville yesterday at 12:34 after being shackled to the wheel of the Chevrolet she was to drive. No motor adjustments or repairs will be made during the trip. The hood of the car was fastened shut with two box car seals before the tour was started. The speedometer was sealed shut in order that the driver would not be able to see the number of miles the continuous trip is taking her. Mr. W. F. Richardson received a telegram today confirming the arrival on schedule of "Miss Chevrolet," who is reputed to be a real beauty.

Brice Leech Extends Influence into New Horizon. The election of ex-Mayor Brice R. Leech to the presidency of the Barren County Singing Convention carries with it an element of news. The public is well acquainted with the many sterling qualities of its versatile ex-mayor, but that he was sufficiently proficient in the warbling of tuneful melodies to head the organization of Barren County songbirds is indeed gratifying to Mr. Leech's many friends.

Southern Kentucky Boy Becomes One of World's Leading Bankers. Melvin Traylor, who describes his early life as that of a hillbilly, became head of the fifth largest bank in the United States today, taking care of the cash of 200,000 depositors. The 53-year-old square-jawed president of the First National Bank was born in the almost inaccessible hills near Breeding in Adair County. At the age of 19, with only a grammar school education, Traylor deserted his native land and hied himself to Texas. While working as cashier, teller, janitor and guard of the Bank of Malone and studying law by night, Traylor was admitted to the Texas bar four years after he arrived in the Lone Star State. When he moved to Chicago, he brought with him the open-hearted small-town banker's best manners and today, as president of the $900,000,000 concern, he is accessible to even the smallest depositor for advice. He has many friends and relatives in Glasgow, including his cousins Spurgeon and Gates Traylor and Clyde Breeding

Who leads the big parade when Glasgow wants to stage any kind of demon-stration? Who lends the colorful touch as the parade moves down the street with Drum-Major Warner Hazelip strutting his stuff and doing acrobatics deluxe? And, as the quick-stepping line draws nearer, we, with a thrill of pride in our hearts, realize it is our own 123rd Cavalry Band, with our own Ed S. Pedigo directing – and what a director is he! Good looking, dignified and musical to the last note.

Beginning with a handful of band boys, he has now an aggregation of musicians that is known state-wide. This Friday evening the Band will don their attractive new uniforms and appear in a concert of popular music. When Director Pedigo raises the baton—let's all be there!

“Early this morning when the sun had emerged from a short rest over the hot night to inform the birds of the air that another happy day was in store for them to begin the harvest of food for themselves and their young, when all nature was alert to a growing day and when most of the populace was yet in peaceful slumber, there moved southward on the L & N Railroad a cargo of merchandise piloted by one who would not do harm to a living being of his own volition, A young man of 19, who had become tired and exhausted by illness and fatigue, slumped to the ribbon of steel for relaxation, his head buried in his hands in stupefied posture with no part of his brain cells able to function to warn of the impending danger of his position. With no time for warning and check of momentum, the powerful monster of steel snuffed out the life that was in its wake. The pride of a widowed mother was removed from earthly existence. Andrew Nichols is dead.”

(The young man lived near Horse Cave and was the son of Mrs. B. Nichols of Hart County.)

Froedge Oliver, 31, and Charlie Earl Lewis, 14, colored were drowned this afternoon while swimming in the old Brick Yard pond near the Samson Tobacco Factory. Froedge, seeing that the boy, who was in the pond several feet from the shore, was floundering, jumped in and attempted to save him but was dragged to the bottom by the struggles of the boy, who was strangling. Jim Wooten, who was in a boat, quickly paddled to the deep water where the bodies had disappeared and, with the assistance of A. J. Mercer, dragged Froedge out with a hook. Buford Wood, who was working in a field nearby, ran to the scene when he heard the outcry and dived in, bringing the body of the colored boy to the surface. Several people who were on the bank at the time of the accident attempted to revive the victims, working with them until the arrival of a doctor. A coroner's inquest was held in both cases, and two verdicts of accidental drowning were rendered. Froedge Oliver is survived by his wife, his mother, one child, four sisters and four brothers. Charlie Lewis was the son of John Henry Lewis, who is a well-known and well liked colored citizen of the town.
